

Misty Tullar
Director of Plans and Programs

Ms. Misty Tullar serves as the Director of Plans and Programs of the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency. As a member of NGA's command leadership team, she provides oversight for the execution and development of strategic direction, policy, guidance, and planning. She also guides the development and management of future capabilities and technologies supporting GEOINT requirements and provides oversight to NGA Portfolio Managers to ensure agency-wide integration in support of strategic goals.

Prior to this assignment, Tullar was the agency's Chief Financial Executive, where she was responsible for overseeing the day-to-day operations of the Financial Management (FM) Directorate to include planning, organizing, directing and implementing program evaluation, budgeting, financial management, cost analysis, manpower, management analysis, and financial reporting activities.

Ms. Tullar joined the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency in August 2011. From August 2011 to July 2012, Ms. Tullar served as the Deputy Chief Financial Executive/Comptroller. Prior to August 2011, Ms. Tullar served as Director, Military Intelligence Program Resources, in the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence (OUSDI). She was responsible for executive oversight of the planning, programming, budgeting, and execution process for the Military Intelligence Program, which funds intelligence activities across the Military Departments and several Defense Agencies.

Prior to OUSDI, Ms. Tullar served as the Deputy Director within the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) Resource Management Office (RMO). Ms. Tullar worked for the former DCI's Community Management Staff (CMS)/ODNI from November 2004 to April 2009. During this time, Ms. Tullar held three different positions within RMO, beginning as the General Defense Intelligence Program (GDIP) analyst, then moving on to the GDIP Foreign Counterintelligence Program (FCIP) Group Chief, followed by the RMO Deputy Director.

Before selection to the DNI's executive corps, Ms. Tullar worked in a variety of positions within the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) and served in a rotational assignment at the President's Office of Management and Budget (OMB). She has been a national intelligence resource manager for over 22 years, starting her career within the Department of Navy working highly classified financial security activities and has since continued to evolve her experiential base from budget development through program analysis to congressional justification, financial planning, and budget execution.
