NGA to host online discussion about eNGAge program for industry and academic partnership

SPRINGFIELD, Virginia — The National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency will host a webinar Nov. 7 at 10 a.m. to discuss a recently launched initiative to partner with industry and academia.

The eNGAge program launched earlier this year and encourages the growth of internal knowledge and capabilities by placing NGA employees in temporary positions within industry and academia. The program also offers to bring counterparts into the agency in order to develop new ways of problem-solving skills and improve business practices to further innovation.

“The goal of eNGAge is to create a truly collaborative GEOINT environment,” said Elizabeth Hoag, eNGAge Program Manager. “This is about collecting a broad scope of experiences.”

Hoag and Michael Geggus, NGA Industry Innovation Advocate, will answer questions about the program. Advanced reservations are requested, but not required. Please email your name and organization to eNGAge@nga.mil.

Join the webinar by visiting <https://intelligencecareers.adobeconnect.com/engagewebinar/>. Attendees can also call 866-710-7331 and enter PIN#: 360003.

For a complete list of current requirement needs and other information about eNGAge, please visit the eNGAge link on NGA.mil. For questions, solution ideas or requests for additional information, call 571-558-1800 or email eNGAge@nga.mil.
